

CPO 2441 Islam in the Modern World

Course Description: The survey course is designed to grant students a broad-based exposure across a variety of conceptual debates, historical events, and policy issues at the intersection of Islam and the modern world and the paths forward. The issues especially religiously-inspired and informed violence/conflict and debates surrounding them have assumed prominence in the 21st century with the resurgence of religion in politics and the subsequent struggle for Islam. These issues will be contextualized in normative, empirical, and historical frameworks to equip students with a sophisticated and multi-dimensional conceptual toolbox to analyze them. (3 hr. lecture)
