

woman. The amount of pain Diego put Frida through is enough creative motivation to last her two lifetimes, and she made good use of it by painting and did so throughout their marriage.

This film depicts the life of a great Mexican artist. It seeks to find the motivation behind Frida Kahlo's work and uses several painful events to give meaning to her works. Frida is a beautiful film that uses life and the life carried in artist's work to find meaning and to answer questions of why every artist is so unique to their work. The answer is smothered throughout the film. Every artist lives a completely different life and unfortunately or fortunately for people all over the world Frida's life was filled with pain.
