

Case Study
Students with Disabilities and Service-Learning

A College Prep professor, I.M. Smart, is using service-learning as part of his class. The project is mandatory, 10 hours, to be completed at any agency on the service-learning master list and/or at any Miami-Dade County Public School. The assignment is for students to tutor a child at the first grade level in the area of reading which directly relates to the course objectives. One of Professor Smart's students has a visual disability so he excused the student from participating.
