

The Miami Herald

Posted on Mon, May. 07, 2012

Shaq celebrates at Prime Italian, Albright dines at MDC's Tuyo

By Lesley Abravanel
lank@aol.com

D Dipasupil / Getty Images

O'Neal

MiamiHerald.com/blogs

The only thing bigger than the meatballs Friday night at Prime Italian was Dr. Shaquille O'Neal, seen making his friends laugh while they all dined on their family style feast. The recent Barry University grad was seen joking and posing with fans on his way out.

Former U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright had dinner last Monday at Tuyo with some community leaders and friends before discussing her new book, Prague Winter: A Personal Story of Remembrance and War, 1937-1948 at Miami Dade College.

Mark Wahlberg was seen sharing a few dishes with a male pal Sunday at Bianca at the Delano.

Bamboo Miami Beach's "Premium Sundays" is a bona fide NFL hotspot. According to our spies, running back Chester Taylor of the Arizona Cardinals and wide receiver Torrey Grissett of the Cleveland Browns partied in the VIP booths with "a group of girls."

Midtown's Sustain Restaurant + Bar is no more. Wrote partner Jonathan Lazar on his Facebook page early Sunday morning: "Bittersweet Symphony. We tried our best. Some say we were pioneers. In the end, we did it our way!"

Financially speaking, the restaurant just couldn't live up to its name, owner Brian Goldberg told us. "The restaurant closed over the weekend....I want to thank our loyal customers and staff."

Thanks to Miami's Restaurant Power Rankings for the head's up.

---

© 2012 Miami Herald Media Company. All Rights Reserved.
<http://www.miamiherald.com>