College-Level Academic Skills (CLAS)

Effective July 1, 2009, the College-Level Academic Skills Test (CLAST) is no longer administered. Recent Florida legislation, Senate Bill 1676, repealed the use of the CLAST to measure the College-Level Academic Skills (CLAS) as a degree requirement for those undergraduates seeking an Associate in Arts (AA) degree or a Baccalaureate degree in Florida's public colleges and universities. All scores earned on the CLAST prior to July 1, 2009, are still valid. Students who need to meet CLAS requirements on or after July 1, 2009, have multiple options other than the CLAST to satisfy the requirements using any combination of passing test scores and/or courses.
